

“Dark and sad will be the hour to this nation when it forgets to pay grateful homage to its greatest benefactors ... for, whether living or dead, whether in time or eternity, the loyal soldiers who imperiled all for country and freedom are one and inseparable.”

– Frederick Douglass

Decoration Day,
May 30, 1871

Arlington National Cemetery

